What genre is a movie review

Jordan Johnson Darsie Bowden WRD 203-301 Genre Analysis - Movie Reviews 2. This genre would typically appear in a newspaper/online news source. Other genres that interact with this one are include general news, entertainment, movies, and other reviews. The subject of this review is the stifled potential of the actors due to their lack of freedom and input in the movie. The participants in this genre are writers from reputable journals. Their roles are to give an opinion on a movie so that readers can form their own opinion based on the review. Writers must be critical and must be knowledgeable about films in general. Readers are mostly movie-goers and people who want to be up to date on popular culture. There are multiple kinds of readers, and whether or not they see a movie may be determined by a review. Readers would probably read a review in a relaxed environment. The purpose of this genre is for writers to share their opinions on a movie so that readers can get a better idea on whether or not they want to see a particular movie. 3. Recurring features include retelling pieces of the plot, actors, and an opinion of a particular scene or piece of the plot. The writer pays careful attention to not telling the whole plot, but just enough to give readers a good idea of what the movie is about. The content revolves around the writer critiquing different parts of the movie. The review is structured with the first paragraph giving a plot overview followed by a couple paragraphs that introduce some of the actors and their characters. The rest of the review is the writers opinion of particular parts of the movie. 4. To me, the rhetorical patterns reveal that the genre is very opinion based, but those opinions are still backed up with facts about how a particular movie relates to others. These patterns are significant because the use of opinionated rhetoric is what makes the genre interesting and worth reading in the first place so that readers can formulate their own opinion. From the language patterns I could learn in what order to discuss different features of a particular movie. I've noticed that this is a very important feature of each review because while reviewers discuss different parts of the movie they are careful not to give too much away. Participants in this genre have to understand how movies are related to each other and the past works of different directors and actors. One main action that makes the genre difficult is making your opinion sound credible and supporting it with evidence. Studio Monkey/Shutterstock Netflix's ever-growing repertoire means that there's something for everyone, but it also means a seemingly endless list of media that can be intimidating. If you have as much trouble choosing what to watch as us, look no further. We've locked down the best show per each genre on Netflix so that you can just jump to whatever you like best and find the next show to curl up in bed with.Comedy - The OfficeCan you believe there are still people who haven't seen The Office? As surprising as it may seem, it's true, and if you are one of those people, let this be your final push towards checking out the TV comedy classic. If you're usually turned off by sitcoms, don't let that stop you - The Office is no regular sitcom, and its deadpan humor makes for jokes that are still being echoed by people all over the world years later. Seriously, don't wait any longer. Watch The Office. Right now. Go.Drama - Orange Is the New BlackAnother popular title, this show is full of both humor and drama, following the lead Piper as she enters the twisted world of women's prison. Dark and light and full of twists, it has a character for everyone to love. It also has LGBT representation in it if that is something you look for, and if not it's very enjoyable regardless. The show also sheds some light on the real issues US prisons face, and how the inmates have to deal with most of them by themselves. It also doesn't help that the opening song is absolutely killer.Crime - NarcosFollowing the path of Colombian drug cartels, this show is dark, gritty and marvellously twisty. It's based on the true story of Pablo Escobar. If you like high-stakes drama, hedonism and crime shows, Narcos is perfect for you. The show is also non-stop action, so you don't need to worry about falling asleep during a late-night binge. A little bit Breaking Bad, a little bit The Heist, Narcos is sure to be enjoyable by fans of nitty-gritty crime.Supernatural - American Horror StoryWith seven seasons American Horror Story could intimidate a more casual viewer, but not to worry. Each season stands on its own two feet as an independent horror telling. Though intended for mature audiences, American Horror Story can be enjoyed by anyone over fifteen with enough spunk to stand up to the creepstastic show it puts on. Plus, did we mention it has an amazing soundtrack? Because it does.Superheroes - Luke CageMarvel's Luke Cage is one of the most critically acclaimed shows available on Netflix right now, and for good reason. Based on the comic book hero of the same name, it's set in the Marvel Cinematic Universe (MCU) - which is a selling point in of itself - and takes place in Harlem, New York. The line Cage toes between hero and villain is the most compelling part of the series, so if you're a fan of grey morality and tough choices, Luke Cage is definitely going to enrapture you. Food - Anthony Bourdain: Parts UnknownThough Anthony Bourdain's passing was a tragic loss both for the food scene and the world in general, his legacy lives on through this travel and food show he filmed from 2013 to his death. If you're a foodie and love seeing different cultures' takes on dishes, this show is perfect for you. Anthony Bourdain is also a pleasant host, with a voice many find soothing and commentary that sheds fascinating light on both the history and the make-up of the dishes shown on screen. MORE FROM BLOGLINES The first thing you do after watching a movie is to go online and write a comment about it. Comments about movies are usually posted on social media profiles or public pages, review sites, blogs, among other platforms. You can make the process easier with tools available online. Writing a movie review is a common assignment that students have to do in high school and college. Even though it may seem simple, movie reviews require time and proper organization. It's not just about writing what happens on the screen, the review goes deeper than that. Movie Review Purpose The main purpose of a movie review is to inform the reader about the film and its ideas. Seems simple, right? Reporting all events that happen and stating one's opinion about them is a common mistake that many students make. While movie review allows writers to express their opinions about some film or documentary, there is also the need for the unbiased and objective approach. An ideal review combines both. The review determines whether someone will want to see the movie. Even if the professor (or teacher) assigned a specific title and film to review, one should act like this is the perfect opportunity to introduce the cinematography work to their lecturer. Always assume they haven't seen it before. As a result, it becomes easier to analyze events that happened on the screen. Film review should be detailed enough to provide assistance in making an honest decision i.e. whether the reader wants to see it or if they'd like it. Why is this type of paper a common school assignment? Lecturers want to get more insight into a student's critical thinking skills and the ability to report event (one or more of them) in a manner that others understand easily. In addition, they want to assess the way you analyze plot and characters. After all, movie reviews also involve the analysis of events that happened in a documentary or "regular" film. Reviews test writing and vocabulary skills, adapting to different genres and events they portray, and your capacity to sum up some major work and report it in a cohesive, logical, and interesting manner. While reviews entail more responsibility than initially thought, students find them fun and with this guide, you will too. How to write a Good Movie Review You have to write a movie review for school and now what? Where to start, how to make it look more "academic"? Today, we have the opportunity to use numerous tools to make every part of our lives easier, and movie review writing isn't the exception. Throughout this tutorial, you'll learn how to compose a report about some film and what tools to use to simplify the process. Step-by-Step Guide to How to Write a Movie Review Beginnings are always the hardest. This is the point where you set the pace and determine how to approach this assignment in the most efficient manner. Here are some useful tips to kick-start the movie review writing process: Watch the movie or documentary twice and take notes of both major and minor events and characters. It's a mistake to rely on the power of your memory only, there's always something we overlook or forget Carry out a thorough research. Watching the movie isn't enough, research is equally important. Look for details such as the name of filmmaker and his/her motivation to make that film or documentary work, locations, plot, characterization, historic events that served as an inspiration for the movie (if applicable). Basically, your research should serve to collect information that provides more depth to the review Analyze the movie after you watching it. Don't start working on the review if you aren't sure you understand the film. Evaluate the movie from beginning to an end. Re-watch it, if necessary, if you find some parts confusing. Only when you understand events that happened on the screen will you find it easier to create the review Draft an outline that you will follow to write the review in a concise and cohesive fashion Include examples for claims you make about the movie. If the plot has holes, then mention an example of a situation or scene when that was evident. Also, if the character(s) is poorly developed or bad casting affected the movie quality, name examples too. Provide examples when commenting dialogues, locations, plot, everything. If you want the reader to agree with you, it's essential to back up your claims with evidence. You don't want to make it seem like you're praising or criticizing the movie without any reason whatsoever Consider and comment a movie's originality and quality of scenes. Explain how the movie stands out or whether it just uses the same approach that worked for previous works in the industry Edusson is Ready to Help with Your Assignment Submit your requirements How to organize your movie review Quality of your paper depends on the level of organization you implement. Never underestimate the importance of well-structured outline, regardless of the type of paper you have to write. Outlines help you focus on the subject and contribute to a logical flow. In addition, getting things organized before you start writing is a great way to save time later on. Instead of trying to figure out what to include, you'll have a well-structured plan to follow. It's needless to mention you won't be stressed out. Here's how to organize your movie review: Introduction (with title, release date, background information) Summary of the story Analysis of the plot elements (rising action, climax) Creative elements (dialogues, characters, use of colors, camera techniques, mood, tone, symbols, costumes or anything that contributes or takes away from the overall plot) Opinion (supported with examples and facts from the story) Conclusion (announcing whether the filmmaker was successful in his/her purpose, re-state your evidence, explain how the motion picture was helpful for providing a deeper understanding of course topic) Movie Review Elements The title of the film/documentary - just because your headline features the name of the movie or documentary it doesn't mean should skip mentioning it in the text. Always name the feature you've watched in the introductory paragraph. This may seem like a stupid thing to point out, but it's one of the most common mistakes that students make Summary - the whole point of the review is to summarize the documentary or movie for people who haven't watched it yet. To make this as effective as possible, always assume that your professor hasn't seen it either (as mentioned above). Why is this important? You won't leave out some important details thinking he/she watched it already so they won't bother. As a reviewer, your job is to explain what happened in the film and express whether the filmmaker failed or succeeded. Again, saying you liked or disliked it isn't a viable comment. Your opinion has to be supported by specific reasons and examples from the feature itself Filmmaker - do a little research on the person who directed the piece. Is that person a controversial figure? Is he/she known for a political stance? Does the filmmaker have a significant background? Devote a paragraph or two to the person behind the movie and their other works in order to establish the significance of the film you are reviewing for the director's career Significance to your class - How does the content of the documentary or film fit into your course topic? Is it important for historical accuracy? If you are watching the motion picture for history class, make note of over-dramatization. If the motion picture is based on the book you've analyzed in English class, you can mention similarities, differences, or some elements that film contains, but book doesn't and so on Creative elements - filmmakers work hard to include creative elements into their motion pictures. How are these elements important to the plot and movie in general? For example, costumes can either enhance the movie or betray its intent. Colors can be vivid and lift the atmosphere or mood in the movie or they can be dull and make it seem depressing. Good sound effects enrich the viewing experience while bad ones only destroy everything. Moreover, camera movements and angles also add elements to the story. Take notes of symbols in the story, if any. Actors - let's not forget the casting! Were the actors realistic? Did they portray the role of a specific character successfully? Did they have good acting skills? Do you believe that some particular actor was the right fit for the role? Checklist / Outline for a Good Movie Review Introduction (title, topic, release date, background information) Accuracy of depiction Use of sources in the documentary Creative elements that enhance or tarnish the overall story (quality of script, visual design, performance, lighting, hair, and makeup, costume, set design, symbolism) Your opinion Conclusion Mistakes to Avoid Not focusing on the film - while connecting the plot to some specific historical event is a good idea (when applicable), strive to avoid writing about unnecessary details or introducing irrelevant information such as the history of cinematography or that particular genre, snacks, among other things Inserting yourself - you're the one who's writing the review. The paper reflects your understanding and opinion of the motion picture you've seen and there is no need to write in first person all the time: I noticed this, I saw that I liked this, I disliked that Failing to check facts about movie background and release date, director, casting etc. Giving out your opinion without mentioning any reason why you think that way Talking about irrelevancies Writing a review without a structure Writing generalities such as great acting, cool effects, a good movie, it was bad etc. Writing a review without substance or analysis of the feature Our highest-rated tutors & writers for hire Dr. Joshua №2 in global rating Mandy №5 in global rating Teresa №4 in global rating Valerie №3 in global rating Movie Review Examples The Hunger Games and the idea of dystopia Mean Girls review: does it exploit stereotypes about high schools or it helps to undermine them?
